Table Manners.

With regard to behavior at the table, a contributor to the New York Evening Post gives some excellent advice, which the following are the chief:

It is impossible to estimate properly the immense influence which is exercised upon a household by the manners of the family table. A well-ordered table is in itself a lesson to the children. To the visiting table, where there should be always something attractive, however simple the meal may be, most children will come prepared to be excellently satisfied. It is really worth while, and when philosophically considered, is a matter of great importance, to lay aside as far as possible all thoughts of the hard work done before and to be done after a meal, and to allow no vexatious questions to be discussed at this time. The habit of brooding over our work, and exhausting ourselves by going it all over in our minds, is one to be studiously avoided. There is nothing which takes from one's energy more than this, and it is a frequent cause of insanity. Everybody knows that food digests better when the mind is at ease. It is really worth the trouble to make a friend remark that he could not have his wife and children pass the summer vacation away from him, as it gave him dyspepsia. The poor child who comes to grief at the table and is sent away from it with his dinner ball-asted, and who suffers the whole afternoon with an undigested lump of food in his stomach, is to be pitied.

In the evening, that pleasant surprise in the way of preparing favorite dishes, that good taste and much painstaking in arranging all the appointments of the table and insuring the most genial existence, just about the time of the day, of good behavior and cheerfulness, ought to accompany each meal as naturally and unvaryingly as breath and butter. The happy laughter which distributes the good cheer and tells the blood from the brain, allowing the stomach to get its share, should be heard more frequently at our tables. No one should feel at liberty to say one word which is not to the point, and which is not more than he would withhold a sufficient quantity of food.

Women and Ladies.

In the days of our fathers there were such things as "ladies' days" and "ladies' hours." Now, when men and women, but now they are gone, and in their place a race of gentlemen and ladies, or, to be still more refined, a race of "ladies and gentlemen." We have seen a lady and gentleman, and a lady and gentlemen, and a lady and gentlemen, and a lady and gentlemen, and a lady and gentlemen, and a lady and gentlemen, and a lady and gentlemen,

"Here comes Robby, from Sleepy Hollow, with a load of butter. We are short, aren't we Jones?"

"Yes, all gone but the bad lot, and they are all crying for something good."

"Bobby, from his wagon: 'Nipper,

I've got some butter for ye!'

Nipper is busy and does not hear."

"Hello there, Nipper; come out and see this butter!"
